

ABOUT 100 ACRES

a proud nod to Olmsted's vision

Nestled within the National Historic Landmark Richardson Olmsted Campus, 100 Acres is a contemporary, ingredient-focused restaurant, bakery, coffeehouse, bar, and gathering space for the surrounding neighborhoods.

Come as you are, come as you're comfortable. Whether you're looking for a casual bite, or an upscale experience, we have a space and a dish for you.

Named after the 100 Acres of farmland originally set aside for the Richardson Olmsted Campus, 100 Acres conjures land - a proud nod to the agricultural and sustainable tenets of Frederick Law Olmsted's vision for this property.

what's with the bug?

these little guys mark our organic wine selections. ladybugs are a chemical-free alternative for pesticides. Cheers to the ladies!

the last straw

Our compostable straws are fully biodegradable in commercial compost facilities, bypassing both recycling and the trash heap. Plus composting produces compost for use in farms and gardens, closing the loop to produce more renewable resources.
